THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1835.

THIS DAY PUBLISHED, and for sale at the Counting Room of the Morning Post, No 19 Water street, the TRIAL of BEALS and GREENE for an alleged Libel upon ALFRED W. PIKE. December 7.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Private Banking, &c.—I concur with the general tenor of the Essays of "Equal Laws," &c. but in some particulars, I occasionally differ from him in opinion. Indeed, I do not think he would himself sometimes speak in such broad and general terms, if some consequences, necessary to his Theory, were suggested to him. In his remarks, contained in the Post of the 3d, he appears to be opposed to all corporate exclusive privileges, and to be in favor of permitting all persons to carry on banking, and of course to issue notes, in the form of bank bills, for public circulation as money. He says, "the trade of banking is one of those modes of acquiring property," which, when left free and open to competition, is equally beneficial to lender and borrower, and in which all men have an equal, unalienable right to engage." Again, he says, "We are not opposed to the trade of banking, nor yet to corporations. If a trade is monopolized, all we ask is, to make it free."

Now, it seems to me very evident, that "the trade of banking," as generally understood among us, is not an "unalienable right." It is no more so, than making lotteries, gambling, or keeping taverns and tipping houses. Whenever certain trades, practices, and occupations become, in themselves, injurious to society, or are liable, when left free, to become so, the legislature has a right to interfere, to make them unlawful, to affix certain conditions to them, or to prohibit them as respects individuals, and to confine them to responsible corporations. As, for instance, the individual right to issue small bills, less than five dollars, or even less than one dollar, which we consider an essential part of banking, might be highly dangerous to the public; therefore, it has been taken from individuals, and restricted to banking corporations. This is not mere theory; the experiment has been tried. Some years ago, certain theorists procured the enactment of laws prohibiting the emission of small bills by the banks, in order, as they said, to make specie plenty. The consequence was, as might have been foreseen, that silver coins became scarce and bore a high premium, and even then could not be obtained by the shopkeepers in sufficient quantity. Taking advantage of the public necessities, several persons undertook to issue their private notes as currency, for small sums. These persons were neither wealthy, nor of high standing in any way. The consequence was, that several of them soon failed, and the holders of their small notes suffered a loss. The legislature, at its next session, passed an act, prohibiting individuals from issuing such notes. This I conceive to be a wise law, and perfectly within the constitutional province of legislative authority. I do not know of any other law against private banking. Any person or persons, it is presumed, have a right to carry on banking, except that they may not circulate their small notes.

There also, it seems to me, may be given to certain corporations or individuals exclusive privileges, for a certain time, with great advantage to the public, and without unjustly violating what "Equal Laws" contends are unalienable rights. If some new manufacture or discovery, or useful undertaking of magnitude, requiring cost and risk, which an individual might be unwilling to assume, were proposed, on condition of an exclusive right for a term of years, the grant of such a right might be politic and of great ultimate utility. These considerations appear to me to be fairly within the power of the legislature, and necessarily so for the good of the community. I agree, that corporations and exclusive privileges, where no special necessity warrants them, are injurious to individuals, and a violation of their just if not their constitutional rights.—They are also injurious to the public, when stockholders are discharged from all responsibility beyond the value of their shares. It is this last consideration, which principally constitutes the value of acts of incorporation; and this privilege has been granted and is now enjoyed to a most unnecessary and unjustifiable extent.

Corporations and exclusive grants are not, in themselves, necessarily evils. It is the injudicious and frequently the corrupt abuse of the power of conferring them, which is injurious. Money is power, and more especially so in republics. Legislative acts are commonly passed under the controlling influence of wealth; therefore these privileges are too often obtained by wealthy combinations, without any necessity for them, and for no public advantage, but often to the great public detriment. A remarkable example exists in the corrupt combination between the petitioners for the West Boston bridge and the proprietors of the old Charlestown bridge, by which the rights of the latter were extended for a long term of years beyond the time limited in the original grant.

"Fast bind, fast find."—The steamboat Ariel Cooley, belonging to the Connecticut River Company, is frozen up in the middle of the river at Hadley Mills.—Should there not come a thaw, it is the intention of the proprietors to remove the boilers and other moveables, as her chance of escape will be small if left to the mercy of the spring freshet.

The City Clerk of Bangor says he has published, since the first day of April last, one hundred and sixty-six couplets—and expresses a hope that none of his customers will be blessed with any more children until they have paid him sixpence a head for recording the birth of those they have already.

Another Express.—The N. Y. Times of Monday says—"We are entering into an arrangement with some of our contemporaries by which to supply the numerous readers of our journal with intelligence from the capital in advance of the usual time, and as early as it can be obtained elsewhere."

Will "A personal Friend" be kind enough to indulge us with a private interview?

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, No. CXI. Republished by Theodore Foster, New York—E. R. Broaders, Agent.—This is a very spirited number. As we are totally opposed to the political tenets of this Magazine, and as it is not necessary to combat with British high-toryism when the tendency is purely democratic as in our country, we pass over all discussions of politics, though with the confession, that the series of papers on "William Pitt" afford splendid specimens of eloquent composition.

The first paper is on a miserable poem, first published some fifteen years ago, and now re-published, styled—"The Modern Dunciad." The author tried to imitate, as Christopher North says, Pope, Mathias, Churchill, Horace, Virgil and Juvenal, and so joining these together, the reviewer calls him, as he is anonymous, and without a name would lose his identity, Pope Mathias Churchill Horace Virgil Juvenal Swipes, Esq. Of all the severe "usings up" with which we are acquainted, preserve us from this! It beats "The Edinburgh Review" out and out in its most "sawagerous" days. The article in the Quarterly which killed poor Keats, is milk-and-water to it. To sport an expressive Kentucky phrase, "it is all—boiled down to a pint." The author must have felt particularly uncomfortable after such a dose. Unless his throat was hopelessly seared by the double-distilled lies and red-hot scandal he had spouted forth on men of genius, Christopher North's broom had made him roar more lustily than that other bull, "the bull of Basan." We wish we had time to squeeze out a little of the peppery juice for the benefit of the soft-soap gentry with us, who puff every book, good, bad, and indifferent. We commend it to the editors of the Traveller and Evening Gazette.—"Modern German School of Irony" is a novel and instructive paper. It shows up the obscure mystifications of mysticism in fine style. The story, "Departure and Return," we should call die-away and lack-a-daisical in an American Magazine.

The style in which this journal is printed here is highly creditable. We hope that one good effect of its appearance will be to correct the mawkish sentiment and chicken-heartedness of our own critics.

TREMONT HOUSE, Dec. 8th, 1835.

To the Editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser & Patriot:—Sir—The Morning Post of yesterday has the following Note:—

"Mrs Wood, we learn from the Transcript, is unable to perform in consequence of severe indisposition. As soon as we get the Amphitheatre completed people wont mind who is sick at the Tremont." For the unfeeling innuendo contained in this note, Mrs Wood regrets more the existence of such an unjust sentiment than even her own illness, and if the expression of that sentiment finds a justification among any portion of the Boston public, even that will not diminish her kind feelings towards them.

Respectfully, &amp;c.

JOSEPH WOOD.

We were, and are, at a loss to understand the purpose of the above Note from the "Tremont House." There is no "innuendo" in the few words which appear to have disturbed Mr Wood, feeling or "unfeeling," and what he alludes to in his pathetic appeal to the public about an "unjust sentiment," we are unable to conceive. The whole meaning of the two lines about which Mr Wood has thought it proper to make such a parade, is simply this—that when there shall be more places for public amusement in Boston than there are now, a diminution of attraction at any one of them will not be noticed so much as it is at present. If there be any "innuendo," or "unjust sentiment," in this plain and simple language, then words are more enigmatical than we ever believed them to be. We cannot perceive the necessity, nor the propriety, of the introduction of the lady's alleged feelings towards the people of Boston in this case—we presume they are pretty much the same that she entertains for those who have listened to her magic strains in most of the principal cities and towns in England and America, and which her kind and grateful heart never can be suspected of withholding from any portion of her fellow-beings under similar circumstances; but we repeat that we cannot divine what the "unjust sentiment" is which Mr Wood says Mrs W. regrets more than she does her cold; we certainly think Mr and Mrs Wood most charming vocalists, and have frequently expressed this opinion, with all the rest of the world who have heard them. We know nothing of them except in their professional character, and as such we never heard the least reproach cast upon them—therefore, the "unjust sentiment" Mr Wood talks about must be a creation of his own imagination, for it is neither expressed nor implied in the language from which he has endeavored to torture it, nor harboured, we venture to say, in the bosoms of any portion of this community.

They intend to play Robert the Devil at the Tremont to-night. There has been some objection made to this Opera on account of its supposed indelicacy, but we are inclined to believe that the piece is not peculiarly obnoxious on this account—the music is highly spoken of. Our friend Barry will act the Friend con amore. He played the very devil with us yesterday by stopping his paper and advertisements; we suppose, however, it was only by way of rehearsal for the character he is to perform this evening—but this was hardly necessary, as his qualifications for it come as did Dogberry's learning, by nature.

Simms is treading upon the heels of our most popular novelists. His "Parson" is well spoken of by all classes of readers, and sought for with avidity.—Messrs Russell & Shattuck have been selling them for a few days back with great rapidity—the Harpers will be obliged to replenish them before long, and had better send a box of "Norman Leslie" at the same time.

The immense block of marble intended for the new Custom House in New York, which, some time since, fell into the Whitehall dock while landing, was raised on Saturday last, and is safe on the pier head. Its weight is 27 tons.

The Hon. Nathan Smith, Senator in Congress from Connecticut, died very suddenly at Washington city at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning, of an affection of the heart.

The Nashville Banner, heretofore a White paper, has mounted the fence.

Fires.—The Tavern-House of Mr John Penslee, in Weare, was burnt to the ground on Saturday the 28th ult. No insurance! The Dwelling House, shop, barn, &c. of Mr Porter Dodge of Framsetown, was also burnt, at noon-day on Thursday last.—N. H. Tel.

Col. Thomas H. Benton.—This distinguished Statesman was in Philadelphia on the 25th ultimo, on his way to Washington, when he was invited by the democrats of that city to partake of a public dinner, to be given as a token of the regard they entertain for his personal and political character. On account of the arrangements he had previously made to continue his journey, he was under the necessity of declining the proffered honor, which he did in a very able and interesting letter from which we make the following extract:—

"Yes, citizens, the country is in a state of unparalleled prosperity, and that it is so, instead of now suffering all the calamities which were predicted two years ago, is solely owing to the removal of the deposits in October 1833. Had it not been for that great measure we should now have had the full portion of that Panic and pressure which was got up then, and partly consummated upon us.—Who does not know either from history, from memory, or from tradition, the cruel part which the first Bank of the United States played in 1811, at the last session of Congress preceding the expiration of her charter, when all the machinery of alarm was put into operation, and a frightful pressure upon the community was produced, and without any pretext or removed deposits, but openly and notoriously for the purpose of extorting a re-charter from Congress through the terrors and sufferings of the people. The scene of 1811 would have been re-enacted now, and the Panic and pressure of 1834 would have been in full blast at this very session of Congress, and with complete success, had it not been for the masterly stroke of removing the deposits at the time it was done. That measure anticipated, and frustrated, the designs of the Bank, and secured to us the exemption from scourging which we now enjoy. If left to herself, and permitted to choose her own time for action, that cruel and cunning Institution would have gone on, as Mr Taney so well said in his patriotic Report, to prepare for battle now. The public and private deposits would have been accumulated in her coffers; State banks and individuals would have been ensnared in her debt; specie would have been hoarded in her vaults; the tremendous pyramid of paper money would have been raised and expanded to its utmost limit; the foreign and domestic exchanges all in its own hands; and the whole country, with the federal government, and all the State governments, like victims bound and prepared for the sacrifice, would have lain powerless and helpless at its feet. In this condition of the people, and on the first day of this impending session of Congress, the signal for Panic and pressure would have been thrown out, and the relentless campaign opened simultaneously from the halls of Congress and the committee rooms of the Bank. Discounts stopped,—loans called in,—exchanges broken up,—specie demanded,—shillings denied to merchants, traders, manufacturers and farmers, while millions were supplied to usurers to shave in their notes and purchase their property for nothing: Distress meetings, distress memorials, distress deputations, distress jubilees, distress orations,—factories closed, business stopped, workmen dismissed, banks and individuals driven to insolvency—the public ear stunned, the senses overpowered, and stupefied, reason and judgment put to flight, by the clamorous din of the bank, and its coadjutors. Such was the scene plotted and attempted in 1811, plotted again in 1834, and which would have been realized now, and the Bank installed in power, with perpetual dominion over the people and the government, had it not been for the most glorious measure of the removal of the deposits. That great measure, by bringing on the contest before the Bank was ready, and by changing the public money to the side of the people saved the Republic—and for the deliverance which it has effected the country is indebted, first, to President Jackson, and next to his faithful friend and supporter, Roger B. Taney."

For the Boston Morning Post.
Mr Editor—I notice the remarks of your correspondent "E," on the subject of the money, MORE THAN EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLARS, which Heman Lincoln and Henry Hill have received the last year, from the public Treasury, ostensibly for the education and civilization of the Indians. I admit that I have suspicions, and meant to convey them to the public, that this money had not really and truly been expended for the purposes for which it was granted: and the communication of "E" is not calculated in the least to remove those suspicions. Mr Hill I do not know. Mr Lincoln I do, and my knowledge on that point does not inspire in me the same confidence that "E" seems to have in the man. As a citizen, I have been obliged to contribute my mite to make up this sum—and as a citizen, thus made tributary, I think I have a right to know how this money has been expended; the public have a right to know—and instead of resorting to subtleties and evasions, as "E" has in his article, let him give us an account of the expenditure of this money. I challenge them to show the account—to produce the vouchers, and then let the public judge whether my suspicions are correct, or whether "E" has attempted to deceive them. The accounts can easily be procured, and if they be not, the public cannot be at a loss for the reason.

I have one more remark to make. It is a matter of public notoriety here, that the societies with which Henry Hill and Heman Lincoln are connected, or the members thereof, were most busy in that Indian controversy in which the State of Georgia and the General Government have been involved with the Creeks; and have little doubt that if the Georgia members of Congress will investigate the subject, which I hope they will do, they will find that a portion of the funds which have been thus furnished from the public Treasury, have been employed to thwart the policy of the government, and to embarrass the measures of Georgia.—The imputations of "E," upon my motives are what might be expected from such a quarter; but whether he be Christian or Turk, his imputations poorly comport with Christian charity. I did not wish to divert this money from the object of educating and civilizing the Indians. My desire was to compel the parties to expend it for that purpose. Have they done it? D.

Mississippi Elections.—We have received three letters from Mississippi from gentlemen of unquestionable veracity—one from Jackson, (seat of Government) one from Columbus, one from Madisonville—assuring us that Rannels (Van Buren) was elected Governor—Claiborne, (Van Buren) elected, and Dickson (White) the second Representative. The last, however, is contradicted from another quarter. We still think our correspondents are not mistaken, though the vote is close between Dickson and Edwards. There is a majority of two to one on joint ballot against Plummer or Poindester, or any opposition man, and Walker's election is considered certain.—Globe.

Runaway Steam Engine.—One of the most curious circumstances in the history of locomotive engines, occurred at the depot of the Leeds and Selby railway, at Leeds. The fireman had lighted a fire under the boiler of a locomotive engine which was attached to a train, and then left it. The steam got up sooner than they anticipated, and the engine set off without either guide or train; and, being unnumbered, it proceeded with fearful rapidity. The astonishment of the fireman may be easily conceived when he found the engine out of sight. The persons who saw it in its flight were amazed beyond measure, as it seemed literally to fly. At length, when the fire abated and the steam lessened, its dangerous speed gradually slackened, and it finally stopped still in the Milford cutting, a distance of 12 miles from Leeds.

In the case of Drew vs. Swift, (Mayor) which has been nearly four weeks before the Circuit Court of the United States, the Jury, yesterday, returned into Court, and reported that they could not agree, and were accordingly discharged.—U. S. Gaz.

The Rev. Mr. B.—, of N.—, used to go to his neighbor every Saturday evening to borrow $5, which he always returned on Monday morning. As the same money which had been lent was invariably returned in payment, the lender became surprised at the repetition of a request so singular, and asked for an explanation. The good old parson replied that he had no use for the money but on Sundays, for he could preach much better with a five dollar bill in his pocket than if it was empty.

Abolition of Oaths in England.—By a late act of the British Parliament, the following declaration is to be substituted in place of the oath heretofore required to be taken:—"I do solemnly and sincerely declare that (here the fact is described) and I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true." A false declaration is punishable as a misdemeanor.

The Postmaster at Providence has been authorized by the Postmaster General, to accept the offer of the Boston and Providence Rail Road Company, to transmit the mail between the two cities. The sum asked was $2,000—we think it enormous.—New Bedford Gaz.

PENMANSHIP AND BOOK-KEEPING, No. 2 Amory Hall, (Corner of Washington and West streets.)

MESSRS. RICHARDSON & STRATTON, having associated themselves in business, for the purpose of instruction in Penmanship, Book Keeping and Arithmetic, beg leave to offer the citizens of Boston and the public generally a prospectus of the course pursued by them.

PENMANSHIP. Messrs Richardson & Stratton, are both so well known to the Boston public, as teachers of Penmanship, and have taught that art with so much success in this city, that it will perhaps be unnecessary to say any thing further of their system of instruction, the merits of which are so universally acknowledged. For the information, however, of persons who reside at a distance, and may be desirous of being taught the above branches, they beg leave to add, that the system is simple and natural, and will readily remove that stiffness of the arm and fingers which is so embarrassing, and which other professors have heretofore almost entirely failed to accomplish.

BOOK-KEEPING. In the department of Book-keeping, Messrs. R. & S. have had more personal experience, and have also derived valuable information from several eminent merchants of this city, which enables them to combine the elementary instruction of the master, with the practical improvements of the merchant. They propose to initiate young gentlemen, who are about entering upon Commercial Business, not to teach mere accounts, they do not pretend to have made any new inventions or discoveries, but will, in all cases follow the most approved precedents of mercantile experience, and give their pupils such practice, as will enable them, when they arrive at the Counting house, to transact business with precision and despatch.

Persons in the above branches may be known by application at their room.

G. E. BARTON, 27 Brattle street.

MESSRS RAPP & BADGER have just arrived (on a short visit) in Boston—and beg leave to make a tender of their services to the Ladies and Gentlemen of this city and its vicinity, in the line of their profession. Six lessons of one hour each, will secure those accomplishments which any Lady or Gentleman should be without.

A. WM. RAPP, W. BADGER.

The following highly respectable testimonials are respectfully submitted.

From Rev Dr Lowell, of this city.—"I am satisfied from the testimonials I have read, of Mr Rapp's qualifications as a teacher of Penmanship, that they are of a high order, and that I need have no hesitation in recommending him to those who may wish for instruction in this important branch of education."

From Rev Dr Wainwright.—"Mr Rapp has exhibited to me his testimonials, which are numerous and very satisfactory. He has also explained to me a few of the leading principles of his system. Upon this evidence, I doubt not of his being worthy of the patronage of the public."

NEW ENGLAND CROWN GLASS.—The New England Crown Glass Company have recently erected a new furnace and glass works, at the town of New Bedford, and now supply the market with Crown Glass, of the best quality.
This glass is thick, pure and of excellent color. Its thickness gives it an advantage over all thin glass, which is liable to crack from contraction in cold weather. Its surface not being polished after being blown, retains its enamel, brilliancy and hardness, and is not liable to the objection which applies to Plate Glass, of being easily and permanently bedimmed by dust.
The New England Crown Glass being purer in color than any other Glass, is preferable for Stores, as it does not tinge the rays of light as they pass through it, and therefore white goods particularly appear to advantage; and it is peculiarly useful for Factories, as some minutes of light may be gained morning and evening, in consequence of the absence of color in this glass. The price of second quality is reduced from the rates heretofore asked.
Those who wish to contract for this Glass are requested to apply to NEW ENGLAND CROWN GLASS. As much imposition has been practised by dealers in Glass, by deceptive marks on boxes and other artifices, any purchaser who may apprehend he has been imposed upon is invited by letter or personally to apply to the subscribers for any information he may wish the undersigned, at Boston or East Cambridge, or to any at the Company's Selling Agents, will be promptly attended to.
Persons wishing the appointment of Selling Agent, can apply to the subscriber by letter or otherwise.

FOSTER'S WRITING ESTABLISHMENT, AND PRIVATE COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.
THE principal object of this Institution is to improve the imperfect hand writing of adults, and to qualify young gentlemen for the Counting-house, in a superior and expeditious manner. PENMANSHIP, and DOUBLE ENTRY BOOK KEEPING, are taught on an improved plan, by which a competent knowledge of those branches may be obtained in ONE THIRD of the time usually devoted to that purpose.
Pupils under 14 years of age are instructed by the quarter;
terms, $10.
CURRENT HAND-WRITING.
Mr Foster's method of instruction is so simple and effective as to eradicate the most confirmed and irregular scrawl, and to substitute a neat, rapid and beautiful style of writing. This establishment is intended as a nursery for penmanship, and taught principles, and as a barrier against the encroachment of depraved taste and assumed talent, so frequently pressed upon the notice of the public. Hours of instruction from 7 to 12 A. M.; 2 to 5 P. M. and 7 to 10 in the evening.
In this establishment will be made to teach on a simple and comprehensive plan, whatever belongs to the well regulated counting house. Such rules and examples only are retained, as are necessary to elucidate the Principles of the art, and give a connected view of the whole, by which bookkeeping is so simplified that its principles soon become familiar, and their application to every transaction in trade easy.
EVENING CLASSES are now forming. For particulars, apply at the Rooms, No. 116 Washington street, (over Perkins's, Marvin & Co's Book-store.) 1st
